

Child Care and Work-Life Resources

Pandemic Guide for State Employees
August 2020

NORTH CAROLINA Office of State Human Resources

The Office of State Human Resources offers this guide as a resource for state employees needing assistance with child care and work-life balance during the COVID-19 pandemic.

In-person learning has been delayed in many North Carolina school districts, requiring students to begin the new school year in an unfamiliar virtual environment.

This creates tremendous challenges for both parents/guardians who work outside of the home or who currently telework and their employers.

This resource is designed to provide information to parents/guardians and state agency employers about options to assist employees with school-age children.

OSHR is grateful for the dedication of the members of the Child Care and Work-Life Balance Task Force, whose work informed this publication.

Employer-Based Options

Resources and options employers may consider to support employees with school-age children.

FLEXIBLE/REDUCED WORK SCHEDULES

If operational needs allow, supervisors may consider allowing employees to flex their regular schedule (or request a reduced schedule) to accommodate their children returning to school or to work around a spouse/partner's schedule so they can switch off caring for the child(ren) in school. In each scenario, it is important to establish parameters.

Employees must acknowledge the flexibility that the agency is trying to provide with work-life balance. This includes mutual acceptance of defined expectations in terms of the critical business needs, routine job tasks, and criteria to determine if responsibilities are being met. If operational needs allow, examples of possible scenarios include:

Scenario 1: Employees may request that their supervisor consider allowing employees to work a split schedule, such as 6-10 a.m. and 3:30-7:30 p.m.

Scenario 2: Employees may request that their supervisor consider allowing compressed work week of four 10-hour days (especially if two of those are weekend days, provides three weekdays with children for school).

Scenario 3: Employees may request that their supervisor consider allowing switching out two weekend days for two weekdays as days off.

Scenario 4: Employees may request supervisor consideration for the ability to telework, coming onsite for important meetings or other required activities.

Employer-Based Options

Continued

Scenario 5: Employees may request that their supervisor consider allowing ways to create different schedules within a section to meet multiple employees' needs. For example, four-hour schedules per day, 12-hour shifts, rotate weekday/weekend shifts to allow more unscheduled weekdays, etc.

Scenario 6: Employees may request that their supervisor consider allowing creation of partial onsite/partial telework arrangement with fewer onsite hours and more flexibility to schedule the telework hours at night.

Scenario 7: Employees may request that their supervisor consider allowing employees to reduce their work hours for a period of time.

Note: A reduced schedule may result in a reduction in pay or benefits. Discuss your specific situation with your supervisor.

TEMPORARY REASSIGNMENT OF EMPLOYEES

Agencies may reassign employees as appropriate, balancing employee needs with the agency's operational needs. This could include employees who temporarily share or switch shifts to accommodate child care needs.

Temporary reassignment allows employees who may need a particular schedule to switch with other employees in like-jobs among divisions in an Agency — if the other division has need of that schedule.

Agencies must consider such requests in a manner that is fair and consistent for all employees.

EMPLOYEE NETWORKS

Employee Networks - Use personal email or social platforms to facilitate sign-up lists, chat rooms, Google Docs, etc. to connect with colleagues who live in proximity or have children in same grades to connect and share supervision and support of students.

Employees may use their own, non-work resources to create lists for:

- Reliable teenagers or known adults available to oversee younger children during virtual school
- Employees interested in establishing a learning pod environment with other families so parents can coordinate schedules and oversight of multiple children
- List of tutoring needs that may be provided by staff (virtual or in-person) on nights/days off to help support each other in subjects of expertise and/or provide breaks between a group of parents.

What Are Learning Pods?

Learning Pods are an increasingly popular idea being embraced by parents/caregivers across the nation. The learning pod solution is a system in which parents/caregivers form cohorts to monitor and support a small number of students to guide them through virtual instruction.

This solution not only allows the “off-duty” parents/caregivers to focus on their jobs, but also allows students to interact and learn together.

Families First Coronavirus Response Act (FFCRA)

The Families First Coronavirus Response Act (FFCRA) requires certain employers to provide their employees with paid sick leave or expanded family and medical leave for specified reasons related to COVID-19 employees with school-age children.

RESOURCES:

FFCRA FAQs from the U.S. Department of Labor

Eligibility Calculator: Determine an employee's eligibility for leave under FFCRA.

Below please find a few of the USDOL FAQs regarding FFCRA. For additional information on topics specific to your situation, please contact your Agency Human Resources Office.

Q: My child's school or place of care has moved to online instruction or to another model in which children are expected or required to complete assignments at home. Is it considered to be "closed"?

A: Yes. If the physical location where your child received instruction or care is now closed, the school or place of care is "closed" for purposes of paid sick leave and expanded family and medical leave. This is true even if some or all instruction is being provided online or whether, through another format such as "distance learning," your child is still expected or required to complete assignments.

FFCRA

Below please find a few of the USDOL FAQs regarding FFCRA. For additional information on topics specific to your situation, please contact your Agency Human Resources Office.

Q: What is a place of care?

A: A place of care is a physical location in which care is provided for your child. The physical location does not have to be solely dedicated to such care. Examples include day care facilities, pre-schools, before- and after-school care programs, schools, homes, summer camps, summer enrichment programs, and respite care programs

Q: Who is my child care provider?

A: A child care provider is someone who cares for your child. This includes individuals paid to provide child care, like nannies, au pairs, and babysitters. It also includes individuals who provide child care at no cost and without a license on a regular basis; for example, grandparents, aunts, uncles, or neighbors.

Q: May I take expanded family and medical leave (EFML) to care for a child other than my child?

A: No. Expanded family and medical leave is only available to care for your own son or daughter.

Q: May I take paid sick leave to care for a child other than my child?

A: It depends. The paid sick leave that is provided under the FFCRA to care for one (or more) of your children when their place of care is closed (or child care provider is unavailable) due to COVID-19 related reasons may be taken only to care for your own son or daughter.

However, paid sick leave is also available to care for an individual who is subject to a Federal, State, or local quarantine or isolation order related to COVID-19 or has been advised by a health care provider to self-quarantine due to concerns related to COVID-19. If you have a need to care for a child who meets these criteria, you may take paid sick leave if you are unable to work or telework as a result of providing care. But in no event may your total paid sick leave for this purpose exceed two weeks.

State employees with school-age children who have questions about their specific leave situation are encouraged to contact their Agency Human Resources Office for guidance.
