

IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR UNC RETIREMENT PROGRAM

The University of North Carolina (UNC) System is committed to periodically reviewing its retirement programs to make sure they continue to help you meet your retirement and financial goals. Among the things considered are the range of investment options available through the plans as well as investment option performance and value.

As a result of a recent review, the UNC System has decided to make some changes to the investment lineup for several UNC Retirement Programs. These changes will be implemented by August 30, 2023. The purpose of this email is to inform you of these changes and how you may be affected.

You do not need to take action unless you have funds invested in an option that is being replaced and do NOT want your funds to be transferred to the replacement option.

WHAT'S CHANGING

UNC System Target-Risk Service Model

If you invest in a UNC System Target-Risk Service Model, your account will be automatically rebalanced to reflect the changes described above to the underlying investments. This means that the amount you have invested in each of the underlying options will change to reflect the goals of the model. These changes will occur automatically, and you do not need to take any action.

What is a Target-Risk Service Model?

A Target-Risk Service Model is an investment mix that offers a specific balance of financial risk and reward. Over time, the service automatically rebalances your account to help keep you on track with your retirement goals. It's a professionally managed portfolio that saves you from having to make your own choices from the retirement plans' investment lineup.
